

Editorial Notes

We are pleased to share with Volume 18 issue 1 of the Dhaulagiri Journal of Sociology and Anthropology to our respected readers. Many congratulations to every author who submitted their scholarly work to this journal and published in this issue. Your patients to pass all review and editorial processes without any hesitation is praise worthy. The current issue represents the execution of the editorial meeting resolution regarding to publish this journal biannually. This implementation of decision certainly beneficial to our esteemed authors and readers. We always like to extend our sincere gratitude to every respected reviewer who has made a substantial contribution to raising the caliber of the articles. This time the layout design of the article is interactive which might be readers friendly.

We have welcome two distinguished scholars from the United Kingdom (UK): Professor Dr. Edwin van Teijlingen, Medical Sociologist and co-director of Centre for Midwifery & Women's Health in the Faculty of Health & Social Sciences at Bournemouth University, UK, as a member of the International Advisory Board, and Associate Professor Dr. Sara Parker, Development Studies at Liverpool John Moores University, UK, as the editor of this journal this year.

We are grateful to Professor Dr. Ram Bahadur Chhetri, who shared his personal life experiences, ideas and opinion about his professional careers with us that encourages scholars. We would like to express our deep gratitude to Mr. Kanchan Mani Dixit for thorough language editing to this issue. We editors express our commitment for working together for scientific research and publication. At the same time for higher quality and visibility of this journal.

The Editors