

EDITORIAL NOTE

Research Committee feels immensely delighted to prepare the second volume of Jana Adarsha Research Journal. As it has been assigned the responsibility to publish the journal every year, Research Committee has now come up with new effort, which, we hope will offer a platform to publish the research and conceptual articles for the researchers. The journal is hoped to be helpful to all those prospective readers who are interested in advance their knowledge in different fields as it encompasses a wide variety of articles ranging from management, literature, social science, health and contemporary issues and so on.

It would have been entirely impossible to bring the journal in this form without the rigorous support of many helping hands involved in the effort directly or indirectly. Therefore, we would like to express our sincere gratitude for their invaluable supports.

The Research committee would like to thank the management committee of the campus, advisors, writers, creative readers, scholars, academicians, faculties and researchers for their support and encouragement to bring out the journal in this form. We also express our sincere gratitude to the campus chief of Jana Adarsha Campus, Mr. Khimananda Aryal for bestowing these responsibilities upon us and supporting us thoroughly until its completion. Our further thankfulness goes to the publication committee of this campus for the involvement in publication of this journal in material form.

Finally, we requested all the creative readers to encourage us with constructive feedback to elude our weakness in the days to come.
