

Editorial

With great pleasure, we introduce the inaugural volume of the SS Multidisciplinary Research Journal, published by the Shramik Shanti Campus, Research Management Cell (SSC-RMC). SSC-RMC aims to advance knowledge by providing a platform for experts and researchers to share their findings and perspectives on topics spanning management, economics, administration, technology, science and social issues. We encourage scholars to submit critical works with broad conceptual and theoretical significance across various disciplines. This scholarly publication is designed to showcase diverse research and foster interdisciplinary dialogue.

In this first volume, we present a collection of articles that cover subjects such as economics, management, sociology, and anthropology and reflect the journal's multidisciplinary nature. The primary objective of the SS Multidisciplinary Research Journal is to generate new knowledge that will support the development of more effective management practices, technological advancements, economic policies, and social development strategies. In an era of rapid global change, the need for evidence-based, well-researched insights is more pressing than ever. The articles featured in this volume address key challenges and offer fresh perspectives on navigating the evolving landscapes of technology, economy, and society. These contributions will serve as a valuable resource for scholars, policymakers, and professionals.

On behalf of the editorial board, we extend our heartfelt gratitude to the contributors who have worked diligently to bring this volume to fruition. Their commitment to excellence in research ensures that this journal will continue to serve as a valuable academic resource for years to come. Additionally, we would like to express our sincere thanks to the reviewers—Prof. Dr. Madhav Dahal, Prof. Dr. Achut Gyawali, Dr. Keshab Bashyal and Dr. Krishna Prasad Ojha, Gokarna Prasad Gyanwali

. As we move forward, we look forward to the continued growth of the SS Multidisciplinary Research Journal and its vital role in advancing knowledge that supports the development of individuals, organizations, and society.
