Surkhet Journal

Research Management Cell (RMC) Surkhet Multiple Campus, Birendranagar, Surkhet

From the Editorial Desk

Research Management Cell (RMC), Surkhet Multiple Campus is pleased to announce the publication of its second edition of Surkhet Journal, (a research-specific peer-reviewed research journal). It is an interdisciplinary Journal that invites articles from different disciplines for innovating and updating knowledge through scholarly research studies. The journey that we have embarked on in this ever-changing world would not have been possible without the scholar's research, its findings, and proper documentation. The main aim and scope of the Journal are not only to collect and compile scholarly articles but also to create a common platform for the dissemination of the studies to the larger readership. It has gone consistently throughout the professional entire career of researchers. The second volume of the journal attempts to bring together the research findings that can inform, develop and affect social policy, enlighten, and transform innovative ideas through the insights of the researchers. We hope that it has provided an occasion for novice researchers to invest their intellectual property with lots of inspiration from experienced researchers to promote newness and bring change to transfer knowledge, skill, art, and efficiency in related fields.

The publication of articles in this journal (second volume and second issue) has undergone we attempted a rigorous process of screening editing, reviewing, and proofreading for avoiding errors and adopt the latest process of publication.

Articles written in English and Nepali languages in different disciplines such as like literature, science, research, teaching and learning have been included in this volume. The first edition was published in 2014 with a humble effort to bring our research publications in the Karnali region of Nepal. Some technical problems arose in its regular publication. We apologize for our procedural gap and delay. However, we have been successful to bring its next volume after nine years of incubation period. Now we want to promise to publish two volumes each year consistently.

We express our sincere gratitude to the campus chief and his administration for motivating us. It would not have been possible without this encouragement of the campus. Similarly, the trust and appreciation of the authors, and cooperation of the reviewers contributed to publish the journal in this form. Moreover, we appreciate all visible and invisible supporters for motivating us to continue publishing Surkhet Journal. Obviously, we acknowledge the contribution of RMC and we are thankful to each member of the Research Management Cell. Similarly, we are indebted to Open and Distance Education Center (ODEC), Tribhuvan University for its consistent cooperative and collaborative support. At last but not the least we have dedicated sincere gratitude to Regional English Language Office (RELO) for providing training sessions and financial support.
